Graduation caps a different year

“This year wasn’t what we expected, but it has been a testimony to God’s grace,” Bryan President Dr. William E. Brown said as the 67th annual commencement service began May 6.

Standing on a platform in front of the Student Life Center that had been opened on Monday before graduation, Dr. Brown looked over the 111 graduates and some 1,500 friends and family members gathered on the Triangle lawn toward the hulk of the Administration Building.

“You have some similarities with the Class of 1950,” Dr. Brown told members of the Class of 2000. “The Ad Building wasn’t complete either - but for a different reason.”

And Mr. Glenn Stophel, chairman of the board of trustees, picked up on that theme.

“I suppose the Class of 2000 will never forget the events of Feb. 6,” he said. “Let me commend you for the strong testimony you have had. Practically all the media commented on the strong testimony of students to the sovereignty of God.”

While the fire and its aftermath was a recurring theme throughout graduation weekend, the true focus seemed to be on thanksgiving.

Keri-Lynn Paulson and Terry Knecht received the P.A. Boyd Prizes during graduation. The Boyd Prize recognizes outstanding character and positive influence with their fellow students.

At vespers the night before commencement, graduate Terry Knecht, from Chattanooga, Tenn., urged his classmates “to be thankful for what you have. I pray God will keep you strong, that you will not give up, that you will be thankful for everything.”

In his testimony that night, Terry explained how God had met his needs, providing a family after the death of his parents, providing finances for him to attend Bryan.

“How grateful I am,” he said.

Bryan opens completed Student Life Center!

Although Bryan College’s Administration Building has not risen from the ashes like the mythical Phoenix, students received an acceptable substitute May 1, as the college officially opened the doors on its new Student Life Center.

The $5-million, three-story brick structure will be the center of activity on campus until the college can rebuild the Administration Building which was partially destroyed by fire on Feb. 6. The structure of the building was completed two years ago but the second and third floors were left unfinished at the time.

The first floor houses the cafeteria and Rhea County Dining Room. After the fire, which destroyed the third floor of the 100,000-square-foot Administration Building and damaged the first two floors, the center’s first-floor spaces were pressed into emergency service. The mail and copy rooms were moved to the first floor of the Student Life Center, the admissions office was moved into part of the Rhea County Dining Room, and the rest of the dining room was converted into a classroom, and the cafeteria serves as a classroom and study area.

Immediately following the fire, college officials decided to finish the Student Life Center in time for commencement this Saturday so the college would have a finished facility to be used by students, Continued on page 7...
Whether we like it or not, entertainment defines American culture. From Star Wars frenzy to Super Bowl paralysis, entertainment is more than the glue of pop culture - it is a national treasure (a billion dollar industry) and our largest international export. Christians differ very little with our non-Christian counterparts in our entertainment choices. We rent as many videos, go to as many movies, buy as many CD's as the rest of the world. We often arrange our lives around our entertainment schedule.

Some Christians stay away from movies, pop music and network television. They are, after all, offensive to those with even the slightest of moral sensibilities. So why bother even acknowledging the entertainment industry? Of course this question is really part of the "Christianity and culture" conflict Christians have confronted for two millennia. There has never been an agreement on what course of action is the most widely practiced. How far do we take being salt and light in non-biblical and anti-biblical cultural expressions. After all, it is argued, aren't we called to "come out from among them and be separate" (2 Cor. 6:37)?

Another approach is to uncritically assimilate entertainment into our lives; an approach that is theologically flawed but widely practiced. How far do we take being salt and light in the world in an attempt to "understand the times?" Indeed, when the Apostle Paul stated that he "became all things to all men so that by all means I might save some" (1 Cor. 9:19-22) he mentioned ways he tried to think like those to whom he was ministering. He wanted to understand the perspective of the unbeliever so that he could build a bridge for them to the Gospel of Jesus Christ. But does this mean taking on the immoral persona of the Hollywood elite? Of course not.

But the challenge to "test everything" (1 Thessalonians 5:21) presents us with a great opportunity to influence our culture for Christ. Every movie or song reflects a worldview. They are telling us what to believe and how to live. Most are engaged them in discussion in the local synagogue, the marketplace, and finally the Agorae.

When Paul spoke to the cultured Athenians, he did not idly pursue the sights, he "carefully examined" their objects of worship. The immorality and violence of many displays was blatant. But Paul was not shocked or offended; he was provoked (the NIV translates the word, "greatly distressed"). His heart was broken, his spirit grieved. The idolatry and immorality of the Athenians so exasperated Paul that he engaged them in discussion in the local synagogue, the marketplace and finally the Agorae.

When Paul spoke to the cultured Athenians, he did not abuse them for their immorality, rather he commended them for their religiosity (Acts 17:22). He even quoted from pagan poets, the Cretan Epimenides and the Stoic Aratus, in order to prove his points. In a fascinating example of reinterpretation, Paul changed their poetic references to Zeus to apply to God!

Once he drew together their obvious quest for truth, Paul challenged them with the reality of God's plan and their need to turn to Him. Some were persuaded, some wanted to hear more, some sneered and left.

Today, we confront our own Athenian agora. The nihilism of Marilyn Manson, the cynicism of South Park, the hedonism of Friends, the transcendentalism of John Travolta, are all set up as idols worshiped by millions. Hidden behind the blatant immorality or subtle spiritualism are strong religious statements. Do we withdraw because our Christian sensibilities are insulted or do we engage because we are grieved and our hearts are broken?

How prepared is the average Christian to confront and challenge these purveyors worldviews thinking?

I, for one, want all the information I can find. Not that I can be entertained but that I can be edified to challenge our culture with the mind and heart of Christ.
Apologetics a believer’s obligation, Geisler says

The historic Christian faith is under attack, and believers are obligated to be ready to defend what we believe, Dr. Norman Geisler said in a chapel series in March.

Dr. Geisler, president of Southern Evangelical Seminary in Charlotte, N.C., said the faith “is under attack by atheists and agnostics outside and cultists inside. Nietzsche said God is dead, Christ is an idiot and Christians are nincompoops. Joseph Smith, founder or Mormonism, said all other churches are destitute of authority from God.”

In a post-modern culture, characterized by a lack of absolutes and the death of truth, how do we proclaim the Bible as the Word of God, when other books like the Book of Mormon and Koran make similar claims?

“We stand on Mars Hill today, like Paul, preaching a theistic worldview to pantheists and atheists,” he said.

“Our first obligation is to know the truth and the times, the unchanging message and the changing milieu. To defend the faith in a postmodern age, we need to understand the times.” But Dr. Geisler pointed out that there are believers who think “Christianity does not need to be defended. They say that the Bible just needs to be let loose. That is pious nonsense.” He said there are five basic arguments against Christian apologetics, and offered responses to them. These include:

* Jesus refused to give signs to evil men. But, “In the next chapter he gave the greatest sign - the resurrection. He gave signs to John the Baptist, Nicodemus and, in Acts 2:22, the Bible says that Jesus confirmed His authority through signs and wonders. Jesus wasn’t in the entertainment business, but anyone open and willing to listen saw.”

* In Acts 17, Paul on Mars Hill, tried to defend the faith, failed and repented. But, he said, “No one I ever heard say that read verse 34: ‘Some men joined him and believed.’ He didn’t fail. He reasoned with them from the Scriptures, from nature and provided evidence to convince people. The Holy Spirit worked with that evidence.”

* Only faith, not reason, can please God. “Hebrews 11 says without faith it is impossible to please God. It does not say that reason displeases God.”

* I Corinthians 2:14 says the natural man cannot understand spiritual things. What’s the use in apologetics? He responded that “That verse is misinterpreted. It says the natural man doesn’t receive - not perceive - the truth. The problem is not that he doesn’t know truth but that he doesn’t want to obey it.”

* Nowhere in the Bible do you see apologetics. On the contrary, Dr. Geisler responded, “There is creation, prophets, miracles, the moral law in our hearts. God must have thought that it was important to present evidence.”

He agreed that “there was a day in our country when you could just preach the Bible. Most people believed in God, believed the Bible was authoritative, were nominal Christians. Today, there is no general belief in truth.”

For that reason, he said, there are three main reasons to defend truth - “The Bible commands it - 1 Peter 3:15 says to be ready to give an answer. Reason demands it - We live in a world with rational creatures made in the image of God. To me, the ultimate insult to God is to say that God doesn’t want us to present evidence but just rely on the Holy Spirit. And, the world needs it. The world needs someone who can show them they don’t have to take a leap in the dark, but take a step in the light of evidence.”

The challenge in our postmodern culture becomes finding a common ground to present God’s truth. “For us to claim that Christianity is true and all other religions are false is seen as intolerant, yet their intolerance often trips them up. "Tolerance is the absolute of today. You have to start at the point that both sides cannot be true; “Everything we believe and they disbelieve centers around a theistic God. The most important verse in the Bible is the first - ‘In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth.’ If it’s false, throw the whole Bible away. If it’s true, everything else is possible. We need to say the evidence points to God.

“The problem, Paul said, is beware of philosophy. But you can’t beware of philosophy unless you be ware of philosophy.”

Graduation Farewell

Our days at Bryan have come to a close, it comes with excitement, gladness, and woes.

We stood at this place just four years before, two fearful freshmen you couldn’t ignore!

How thankful we are for those who did pray, For our lives to be spared in the wreck late last May.

Our days have been filled with studies galore, Real people, real lives make Bryan all the more…

Special to us as we take this next step, The future ahead, post memories well kept

So farewell to you all and a tearful good-bye, Now let’s get off this stage and call us ALUMNII!

A reunion of descendants of William Jennings Bryan and comments about Mr. Bryan’s character highlighted Bryan College’s Heritage Day 2000 in March.

Three great-grandchildren of the college’s namesake, Jenna Rose and her husband, Scott; Kent Owen and his wife, Sandy; and Helen Hicks, traveled from California for the day set aside to honor Mr. Bryan. They were joined by Jeannine Richards and Doris Whitten of the Salem, Ill., Historical Commission that operates a museum at Mr. Bryan’s birthplace, and by Dennis and Barbara Hodgson, who own Mr. Bryan’s home in Asheville, N.C.

In a salute to the character education program in Rhea County’s public schools, Mrs. Rose spoke in the Heritage Day chapel service about Bryan’s “Seven Cs of Leadership.” She said Bryan’s life was characterized by credibility, candor, commitment, compassion, confidence, courage and clarity.

“When Bryan spoke about our government, his words were true then and they are still true today,” she said. “In an address he gave at the Union Seminary in Virginia, he said that the government is the best form of government ever conceived by the minds of man. "This is not because it is perfect, but because it can be made as perfect as the people deserve to have it - no better, or worse, than is brought about by their own efforts. But the most important things in life lie outside the realm of government. More depends on what the individual does than upon what the government can do for the individual. She said Mr. Bryan’s candor is best illustrated by his relationship with President Woodrow Wilson, whom he served as secretary of state. “Bryan was perfectly frank with President Wilson. He never left any doubt about his stand on neutrality.” Mr. Bryan resigned when the president took steps Mr. Bryan perceived as leading the country into World War I.

Commitment is illustrated time and again in Mr. Bryan’s life. “He was committed to solving international differences through peaceful arbitration. He was committed to public regulation of political campaign contributions - sounds like campaign finance reform to me. "Bryan was committed to becoming president. When he campaigned in 1896, he traveled farther - 18,000 miles by train, saw more people - five million in 27 states; and gave more speeches - 600, or 10 to 20 a day - than any presidential candidate before him.”

Mr. Bryan’s support for women’s suffrage, for the eight-hour work day, for minimum wage, for workman’s compensation, for minority rights and for public education all demonstrate his compassion, she said.

His confidence is seen in his agreeing to run for president three times, believing his positions were correct.

“Bryan had the courage to support unpopular ideas when he thought they were in the best interest of this country,” she said. “He supported the graduated income tax.

“He was courageous enough to act on his beliefs. He resigned as secretary of state because he felt every avenue for peaceful negotiations had not been explored.”

As for clarity, “there was never any doubt about Bryan’s stand. He spoke what he believed, and did so in such a way that no one would misinterpret his views. He didn’t change his views with the change in direction of the political winds. He didn’t delay telling the truth.”

Following the chapel service, Mrs. Rose, Mr. Owen and Mrs. Hicks, with Dr. Bill Brown, planted a tree beside Rudd Auditorium in honor of the Bryan family.

Outstanding Faithfulness and Loyalty Award.

Damien Daspit of New Orleans, La., received the Senior Math Award.

Eric Zensen of Dayton received the Outstanding Senior in Physical Education Award.

Christa Taylor, a senior from Knoxville, received second place in the informal essay category of the Bryan Literary Life Award.

From left, Shannon Kilgore received the Doris Morgan Scholarship; Kristie Isbel received the Nannie K. McDonald Education Scholarship; psychology professors Dr. Ray Burwick and Dr. Jim Coffield; Christina Senter received the Ann Burwick Scholarship; and Clinton Donough received the Psychology Achievement Award.

Tennis teams improve

Bryan’s tennis teams improved their records from last year, and the women’s team began in mid season with the following conference ranking by one place.

Coach Bob Andrews said the men, who finished 4-7 during the regular season, good for fifth place in the conference, came close to breaking even, but a bad day late in the season dashed those hopes.

“The guys played well during the course of the season, he said. “They played to their potential most of the time.”

In the Tennessee-Virginia Athletic Conference tournament, the men drew as their first opponent the University of Virginia at Wise, a team that had beaten the Lions twice during the season. The Lions won two of the three doubles matches, and one singles match, but were swept the rest of the way.

Under new tournament rules, the double teams of Tyler Seara and Kent Suter and Ben Johnston and Mike Veloz and Kent, who won his singles match, were unable to advance.

The 2000 Lady Lions team improved their final conference standing to third place, up one notch from a year ago, as they posted a 5-5 record.

Two 5-4 victories were highlights of the season, Coach Andrews said. “We beat Virginia Intermont 5-4 at home, then, in mid-season beat King at King. That match came down to the last match, and Jeffrey Weiss, a freshman, won in two sets 6-4, 6-3.”

The women advanced to the second round of the TVAC tournament after beating Virginia Intermont 5-3, but lost all matches in the second round.

“They played well, but they would have done better under the other tournament format,” Dr. Andrews said. A year ago, Alison Villanovna won the tournament at No. 1 singles, but with the new format - abandoned since this year’s tournament - only teams, not just individual players, could advance.

Dr. Andrews said Tyler Seara earned the Most Valuable Player award for the men, with Kent Suter picking up the Most Improved Player award. “Tyler was 1-10 at No. 1, but by playing there, he allowed the other guys to face opponents more in line with their own ability.”

Kent, who was not a starter at the beginning of the season, came on to earn a position at singles and log a 7-3 record. He teamed with Tyler at No. 2 doubles, and the team was 4-4 for the year.

Freshmen Ben Johnston and Mike Sheddan were the heart of the lineup,” he said. “After three or four matches they began to play well; it took a while to transition from high school play.”

He pointed out that at the Milligan contest, the two teams were tied 4-4, with only Mike’s match remaining. “He lost the first set 6-7 on a tiebreaker, and was down 2-4 in the second set,” Dr. Andrews said. “He came back to win that set 4-6, then won the third set 6-3.”

The men will lose senior Mike Veloz, and might lose Tyler, a senior who has one more year of eligibility. “He’s thinking about coming back for next year,” Dr. Andrews said.

In addition, the coach expects Matt Snead to return to the team after spending this year teaching English in China. “I anticipate a strong lineup next year.”

The women, however, face a rebuilding year. Four seniors - Alison Villanovna, Amy Ford, Dana Ballard and Wendi Bauman, will graduate. Alison, the MVP, logged an 8-5 record, and Dana had the same record in picking up the Most Improved award. “She really came on strong.”

Dr. Andrews is counting on freshman Jessica Well, who went 6-3 this year, to provide leadership with rising senior Rachelle Elliott. He said he is expecting at least two strong freshmen to join the team, which will include three sophomores and Rachelle as the only senior.

Bryan Life • Summer 2000
Student Life Center

graduates, alumni and families of students, according to Dr. Bill Brown, college president. "We want our graduates and continuing students to have someplace to remember being finished at Bryan, rather than just remembering the shell of the Administration Building," Brown said.

To complete the Student Life Center in time, workers for Dayton-based Dillard Construction worked nearly around the clock for two months.

About a million dollars was spent in the past two months completing the 38,000-square-foot building, according to Brown. The second floor of the center includes a large student lounge, recreation center, the college bookstore and student development offices. All of the furniture on the second floor was donated by the La-Z-Boy Foundation.

The third floor of the center houses a cafe and an outdoor patio, complete with a breathtaking view of the valley. The student government offices are located on the third floor, along with offices and curriculum center for the college's Practical Christian Involvement ministry and offices and a classroom for student publications. A few spaces in the Student Life Center will be used in the fall for classrooms to help relieve the shortage caused by the fire.

College officials are still waiting for a final figure for the insurance settlement from St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance Co., although unofficial estimates place the damage at more than $10 million.

Once the college learns what it will receive from the insurance company, officials can finalize plans for rebuilding the administration building. Three options are currently under review: rebuild the third floor and renovate the bottom two floors, rebuilding a portion of the third floor and renovate the bottom two floors, or remove what remains of the third floor, renovate the first two floors and build a separate library building.

"The Student Life Center is just the first phase of a 20-year plan that has been compressed into about seven years," Brown said.

Nearly 200 people attended a ribbon-cutting ceremony Monday morning. Members of the college's board of directors, Dayton and Rhea County officials, along with local and Chattanooga media, were on hand for the ceremony.

"It's nice to have a big crowd even when something's not burning," Brown joked.

Chairman of the Board Glenn Stephe attributed the completion of the building to the contributions of alumni, local businesses and the City of Dayton.

Dayton artist Sue Wilhoit presented one of her trademark watercolors of the administration building as it appeared in 1955, shortly after completion, to the college. The college then presented the watercolor to Rhea County Executive Jim Wilkey to be hung with Wilhoit's other works in the Rhea County Courthouse.

Remember what it looked like?

Dayton watercolor artist Susan Cassidy Wilhoit has captured the beauty of the Administration Building and the Triangle in a new, limited-edition print that will be available Aug. 1.

The painting from which the prints are made joins others in a series of historic sites in Rhea County Mrs. Wilhoit has done. Originals of these subjects are on permanent display in the Rhea County Courthouse.

Five hundred limited edition prints, signed and numbered by the artist, are available for $75; artist's proofs are available for $125 by contacting Mrs. Wilhoit at Pleasant Places Watercolours, 537 Evergreen Drive, Dayton, TN 37321; phone 423-775-6781 e-mail: swilhoit@volstate.net. Postage and handling is $10, plus 8.25 percent Tennessee sales tax, if applicable.

A percentage of the sale of the prints will be donated to Bryan College.
Graduation caps off a different year

Dr. Bob Andrews, '67, right, Bryan's tennis coach, has a gift for Mike Veloz, one of his team members from this year.

"We came here as boys and girls and four years later come out as men and women, in large part due to the faculty." - James Hutcheson expressed his appreciation to four spiritual mentors - his grandparents, with whom he lived for his first two years at college, to Woodley-Ewing Resident Director Phil Pranger, and Vice President for Student Life Dr. Peter Held.

James Hutcheson, a graduate from Aurora, Colo., added his appreciation to the faculty, Dr. Brown and parents. "We saw the awesome strength of the faculty as the school burned. We didn't see any of them cry. They knew the Lord was in control. To see such godly examples strengthens us.

In their commencement speeches, representatives of the Class of 2000 pointed out that the attitude graduates assume will color their outlook on life.

Nancy Martindale from Dayton, Tenn., representing the ASPIRE degree completion students, said, "Most of us have run into obstacles somewhere along the way. Only by overcoming these obstacles, by not letting them stop our progress toward goals, indeed, by seeing the opportunities within the obstacles, can we succeed."

Stephanie Wise, from Morrison, Colo., suggested the way to have that attitude is to take the Apostle Paul's admonition in Romans 12, to become a living sacrifice. "Being at Bryan has been a resource for us to renew our minds. What a blessing! But, we must not stop the renewing of our minds just because we're finishing here.

"If there's anything we learned at Bryan, I hope it is that we don't 'get it' yet, but that we must keep striving to live our lives as our motto suggests with Christ Above All.

"No matter what we're doing, no matter where we're going after this ceremony, our single aim is to present ourselves as a living sacrifice. Our thoughts and plans, our degrees and awards and promotions and accomplishments mean nothing if Christ is not above all."

Tyler Seera, from Dayton, said the graduation celebration, as well as other celebrations and trials graduates will experience, only makes sense because of the grace of God. "Nothing, no measure of success or failure, no amount of experience or education, no depth of sorrow or height of celebration, may be properly understood and interpreted except in the context of the redeeming and sustaining work of Christ."

"I would suggest to you that there will be points in your life where you find that your job is less than fulfilling, your marriage is frankly a bit disappointing and your kids are as hard to raise as some of us were. In those times, remember the context is Christ, and it is His hand that holds us together when we struggle."

"Grasping that allows us to see that it's okay, for instance, not to make a lot of money. You Bachelor of Arts candidates will likely never make much money. Fortunately, we Bachelor of Science candidates have at least a chance."

That evening, as faculty and staff celebrated the end of the school year, Dr. Brown observed, "When I look at our students and realize they had a lot to complain about, but didn't, I am humbled. Students saw in you what you did, the way you did it, something about

James Hutcheson pulls the roll of ribbon around the circle of graduates during Vespers the evening before graduation. Later, Dr. William E. Brown clipped the ribbon so each member of the Class of 2000 could have a commemorative piece.

Cameras are an important feature of commencement weekend as graduates, families and friends seek to capture significant moments. Jessica Ritterbush, '98, left, looks on as Jennifer Smith, center, and Lorraine Gonce evaluate a potential photo opportunity.

Joyce Argo, who has catered many a reception after vespers, takes a break from her duties to chat with Tim Shetter, a senior member of the senior class. In his years at Bryan, Tim has had many jobs, including working for the Argos and serving as an RA.
I once heard an old-time preacher say, “You haven’t been tried until you’ve been tried by fire!” Was he ever right! I am truly grateful to each of you for your continued prayer and sustained financial support through this trying time. You can’t imagine the joy I experienced to see the sheer number of alumni, friends and organizations who opened their hearts to give to the Emergency Response Fund.

Below is a list of donors who have invested by sowing seed into the fertile ground of Bryan College by giving generously to the Emergency Response Fund between Feb. 6, and May 30.

May our Lord richly bless each of you as faithful stewards of His assets.

Thank You!

With sincerest gratitude,

CHARLES '56, and CHARLOTTE '56x, WILLOUGHBY with Biblical Ministries Worldwide, are living in Lawrenceville, Ga., and keeping in touch with Cuba. They are receiving E-mail letters from friends in Cuba who appreciate the medications the Willoughbys have been able to send through a pastor in Miami. For the first time in 13 years, all six of the Willoughby family expect to be in the U.S. for a family reunion.

DAVID, '57, and KAY (TEMPLE), '55, HENRY rejoiced in their ministry in Yakutsk, Siberia, to see a reunion.

These believers have turned to the Lord within the past 10 years and represent about 400 from the evangelical Baptist Church. The Haven with guests from several cities as far as 50 miles away. The Pitts are pleased to have a new apartment as their home. Their E-mail address is chaven@IAM.net.ma. DAVID, '65, and ANN, '65, LIND, Fortaleza, Brazil, are serving at the Fortaleza Academy, which has its staff provided for the 2000-2001 school year. The academy students and staff joined in celebrating the 50th anniversary of the discovery of Brazil by a Portuguese explorer. After their chapel program, the children planted a pau-brasil tree, from which Brazil received its name. David is also leading the new Curitiba Baptist Church, which had its first Easter celebration with sunrise service and breakfast along with their regular services. The Lind's planned to make a one-month visit to the States, thanks to a special gift for their trip.

DAN, '65, and LOUISE (GRAHAM), '68 SHEYDA presented two furlough workshops to colleagues in Cuaiaba and Porto Velho, Brazil, to help missionaries prepare for home assignment. In February, they began the five-week annual translation workshop with six translation teams and their Indian helpers, in addition to the second furlough workshop. In March, they held a 10-day language program planning workshop for 10 of the translation teams that Dan supervises. In April they expected their daughter, Rebekah, to visit for a week. In May, preparations were being made for the Wycliffe biennial branch conference to be held in Cuaiaba with Louise as chairman of the hospitality committee and Dan in charge of having the center ready for the group. On June 23, the Sheydas are scheduled to fly from Cuaiaba, to Charlotte, N.C., to begin a six-month furlough.

Russell and NANCY (GOEHRING), '60x, EBERSOLES, who live in Shamong, N.J., recently traveled to Hong Kong, Cambodia, Bangladesh and Thailand. Thus far in Hong Kong their mission's work has not been curtailed in their 30 churches under the new Communist government. Russell preached at the Po Lam Baptist Church at two well-attended meetings of Filipinos, who are domestic workers, and he was at the 40th anniversary of the China Baptist Theological College. A revival continues in the Chittagong Hill Tracks of Bangladesh and last year 400 tribal people came to Jesus Christ and 350 were baptized. The Ebersoles visited their son HAROLD, '80, his wife, Shawne, and their two sons, and were pleased to see the large field council functioning so well under Harold's leadership in Bangladesh. In Thailand Russ preached at the Grace Baptist Church, the first church started by the Philippines ABWE many years ago.

Michael and REIKO (SUZUKI), '70, O'DONNELL, live in San Antonio, Texas, since Mike's retirement from his U.S. Air Force chaplaincy. He served in several different locations including one stint in Japan, where Reiko could visit her family. Now Reiko is teaching Japanese language and culture in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades in San Antonio public schools for the fifth year. Many of her students are Hispanic. Mike is a chaplain at the Baptist Hospital. Their son, Raymond, is in college.

KEITH PATMAN, '75, who lives in Kensington, Md., is preparing a guide in French to New Testament books to help equip mother-tongue Bible translators. He is also encouraged by teaching the Ngonu Bible translation program gaining momentum as translators in Cameroon continue their work.

Nard and SANDY (NEUMANN), '75, PUGYAO, in Elizabethton, Tenn., experienced a winter blast late in January that left them without electricity for three days. With a fireplace and camping stove they survived.

Sandie finished homeschooling for their son, Philip, who has started college. Steven is in the Army with a new office job. Nard and Philip made a trip to Nard's home area in the Philippines, where Nard relived many memories, including his obedience to Christ in 1949 and his first reading of the New Testament in his own language in 1956. He went back to minister to his people by showing the "Jesus" video on six nights and leaving it in the hands of a team to travel with it to other areas. Nard will be sharing in several conferences and meetings to represent Wycliffe in the States in the next few months.

KENNETH, '76, and Gwen BAKER with their three children, are living in Joure, Niger Republic, and studying the Hausa language. They are developing relationships with the local people, including the traditional king of the Beri Beri people in their region. In March and April, Ken was away for four weeks to attend the Niger council meetings in Niamey, then the SIM international council meetings in the U.S. Gwen was alone with the children and their homeschool program for David, Michelle and Catherine.

VERNON, '76, and DORRIS, '76x, STEVENSON closed the sale of their house in Palmer, Alaska, as they prepare to travel in the lower States on their way to the Czech Republic. They have been notified that all the paperwork is being processed for them to go to the Czech Republic, hopefully by mid-July. Dorris has had considerable back pain but injections have given her at least temporary relief.

Bartolome and REBECCA (GOLDHOLDSTON), '77x, CALLES with their children, Ruben, Lydia and Pedro, live in Villagordo, Spain. With the help of other Christians, they have been going door-to-door in different towns to pass out tracts and engage in conversation as the Lord opens the way. The architect who is designing their new church building expected to be finished by mid-April. They plan to tear down an old building and erect a new building for their church.

DALE, '77, and Opal LINEBAUGH have retired at Miracle Mountain Ranch in Spring Creek, Pa., where they had begun the ranch before coming to Bryan College. In addition to assisting at the ranch, Dale has been interim pastor of the Lyona Baptist Church since last August. Opal taught a women's class for six weeks and the women's husbands asked permission to join the class. The Linebaughs were anticipating a trip to Alaska in May where their son, JONATHAN, '84, is pastor of the Glennallen Community Chapel.

JERRY CLINE, '78, received his M.B.A. with an emphasis in technology management from the University of Phoenix. He and his family reside in Michigan where Jerry works for GMAC as a staff assistant. He recently was award the CIO award for outstanding and exemplary performance on a yearlong project that he implemented ahead of schedule and under budget.

ANNA (DAVIS), '79, PRINCE received her Master of Education in Mathematics from the North Georgia College and State University on May 14.

FAITH DUGAN, '80x, has enrolled over 20 Good News Clubs in the Brooklyn area this school year and hopes to reach the goal of 25 clubs. A workshop for teachers was held on March 13, with instructions for the next six-week lesson series and the third annual Brooklyn Benefit Banquet on March 25. A week's training for summer teachers was scheduled for June 10-10 a Rally on June 6 in Brooklyn. The summer goal is to have 200 5-day clubs during July and August with a Madison Square Garden Children's Evangelism Crusade on July 14, 15 and 16 in connection with a chips for adults.

Bill and NORMA JEAN (KENNEY), '82x, JANCEWICZ have been enjoying their year's leave from Canada as they live in Groton, Conn. A car was provided for them at the Wycliffe office near Chicago, so they have been visiting churches to share their vision of providing the Scriptures in the Naskapi language.
The family planned a week's vacation at Colonial Williamsburg in April, and Bill and Norma Jean were scheduled to attend a native language conference in May in Toronto. In July and August the family will go to Washaw for Wycliffe's North America Branch Conference for planning, technical training and fellowship. At the end of August they will take their son, Ben, to college. Then they will move back to the Naskapi community in Schefferville, Ontario, Canada.

RICK, '83, and KIM (FIORI), '83s, PARKER are excited to have 50 students this year in their Word of Life Bible school. The Parkers have nine students in their family group for special activities twice a month, and in May they planned a weekend away for them.
Their Christian grade school now has 70 children, more than double last year's attendance. Most of the children are not Christians, nor are their parents; but many parents have talked to the teachers about spiritual things.
The second year of boat ministry conducted on weekends with the assistance of 11 students is reaching five communities. One Catholic community objected, but the teens and kids heard about the ministry and insisted that the leaders allow the boat team to come. From this ministry 20 teens shared in January camps and four invited Christ into their hearts.

James and SARAH (CRAMER), '84X, CAMILLO announce the birth of their daughter, Hannah Grace, on April 8. Hanna weighed 7lbs. 7oz. She joins big brother Aaron, 12, and sisters Bethany, 9, and Abigail, 5. James is a crew chief in the national guard of New Jersey, and Sarah homeschools the children.

HOWARD BURGOYNE, '84, is pastor of the Newport Covenant Church in Bellevue, Wash., where he and his wife, Ann, reside with their two children, Taylor, 10, and Terra, 20 months.

Greg and CHERYL (JOHNSON), '84 RYLE are involved with a national well-digging team in the Kadiolo area of Mali, and in the evenings they share the "Jesus" film to the village people in Bambara, the tribal language. Many Malians have come to know Christ through this outreach. At present, 67 missionaries receive e-mail via radio via the MAF office and the Ryle's home. The MAF office helps missionaries in the Ryle's home by repairing their computers and returning them quickly. Two nationals are training with Greg in computer repair. The MAF Bamako Christian School is now in its third year with 35 missionary children and four teachers.

from the time he was 16 months old. The Lopez family lives in Pittsburg, Penn.

DANNY BICE, '86, along with a colleague won first prize in the local columnist category of the National Headliners Award, one of the most prestigious journalism competitions in the nation. His winning article surpassed more than 100 others that came from such papers as the Los Angeles Times, the Chicago Tribune, the Boston Globe and the Atlanta Journal Constitution.
Danny lives in Wisconsin with his wife,
SONYA (KNECHT), '87, and their children, Zachary, 7, Sophie, 5, and Raney, 3. He writes for the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel.

Michael and VICKY (MOHLER), '86, DYE were married May 23, 1999, in Lebanon, Ill. The couple lives in Collinsville, Ill. Michael works as an account executive in St. Louis, and Vicky teaches English as a Second Language part-time in community colleges throughout the St. Louis metro area.

BRIAN, '86, and JOY (BUCK), '85, MITCHELL

SLOAN welcome their son, Joshua David. Joshua was born April 24, weighing 7 lbs. and measuring 19 inches long. He joins Ben, 5, and Jacob, 4. The Sloans live in Columbia, S.C., where Doug serves as a major in the U.S. Army.

Dennis and DEBBIE (LAWALIN), '88, HUBERT had an eventful 1999. On April 22, Dennis underwent a successful brain surgery to remove a baseball-sized malignant tumor. After radiation and chemotherapy treatments, the latest MRI on Dec. 27, showed no new cancer growth. The Huberts were also blessed this year with the birth of their son, Jody Marcus, on July 1.
Jody joins Ashley, 5, and Jacob, 4.

Isaac weighed 9 lbs. 10 oz. and joins brothers Buck, 8, Ethan, 6, and sister Hannah, 4. The Schroeders live in Sebring, Fla., where they stay active with the youth at church, are building a house, and Debra homeschools.

Tim and BETH (BRANSON), '89, WOOD with their children, Jonathan and Sarah, in Beira, Mozambique, were concerned a few months ago about drought; now through recent floods some people have lost all their crops, all their food reserves and their seeds as well in the southern part of Mozambique. In the Machanga area where they lived for three months last year to study the Chindau language, many families there lost their houses in the floods and the cyclone which followed. Tim planned to go with some church leaders to assess the situation and see how they can help. He has been teaching at the Sifala Bible Institute and Beth returned as treasurer. Beth is working on a grammar of the Chindau language to help with future study.

NOEL, '89, and MELODEE (WOLCOTT), '90, ALLEN, and their four children, Eric, Sarah, Hannah, and Michael, live in Ft. Worth, Texas. Noel is working for Hagar Clothing Co. as manager of order scheduling and Melodee is helping part-time at the Race Trac gas station near their home and enjoys opportunities to practice her Spanish. Both Noel and Melodee serve on the missions committee at their church. Melodee has been homeschooling Eric and Sarah and with the normal household chores and family activities finds life can be very busy. They greatly enjoy their children’s development and unique expressions and activities.

ERIC, ’94, and Allison ALBRIGHT were married Dec. 11, 1999, in California and are now in Dallas, Texas. As missionary candidates assigned to Southeast Asia under Wycliffe, they have been advised to have a master’s degree for more academic credibility for government relations. They are both working toward master’s degrees in Applied Linguistics in Dallas and taking the cross-cultural teaching class together; Eric is taking Biblical Backgrounds and Allison is studying New Testament Greek. Wycliffe also prefers newly married couples spend their first year in the States, so they look forward to leaving for their field in January 2001.

Jace and JACLYNNETTE (PORTERFIELD), ’95, BROADHURST welcome their new son, Kadin Josiah, born March 26, weighing 7 lbs. 13 oz. The family lives in Orlando, Fla., where Jace is finishing his studies at Reformed Theological Seminary and
YOU BE THE JUDGE

As the 75th anniversary of the Scopes Evolution approaches, Jan Cruser, Bryan's former assistant to the registrar, and her son, Tim, have published You Be the Judge, a book of news articles about the trial, compiled from the files of the Des Moines Register.

The 367-page book includes stories from July 1, 1925, through Aug. 8, 1925. It contains information about the founding of Bryan College and even has a brief mention of the fire of Feb. 6, that occurred shortly before the book went to press.

For students of history, the newspaper articles provide an interesting insight to the temper of the times and some rarely heard tidbits about the trial and the community.

You Be the Judge may be ordered by contacting the Cruvers' business, Tennessee Laser, at 423-570-8949.

GLENN KLAMM, '40, died after a brief illness in Lynchburg, Va., on April 10. He and his wife had retired to Lynchburg to share an apartment in the home of their son, HARVEY, '70, and wife, IRENE (WILSON), '69, KLAMM. Glenn is survived by his wife, Elainor; three sons, Harvey, Roy, and David; and two daughters, VERA (KLAMM), '74, TORRES, Knoxville, Tenn., and Joyce Klamm Coble; also four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. During his ministry career he served in eight Baptist churches in New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and Maine, and taught Bible at the Lynchburg Christian Academy. His funeral was held at the Thomas Road Baptist Church in Lynchburg.

DR. EUGENE ROSENAU, '44, retired missionary with Baptist Mid-Missions, died in Greenville, S.C., on May 21. Following his missionary parents to Africa, Eugene and his wife, ERNESTINE (HEALAN), '44, served at Ft. Sibut, Central African Republic. After retiring in the U.S., the Rosenaus continued to help in ministry by preparing Bible study materials for their African friends. In addition to his wife, Eugene is survived by two sons, Douglas, Atlanta, Ga.; and Vernon, Cleveland, Ohio; and daughter Anna Kay Haskell, who with her husband is serving in Netherland. They have eight grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

RUTH (HOOKS), '48, SCHWENK went home to be with the Lord in April. She is survived by her husband, GLEN SCHWENK, '50, and two children.

RICHARD T. McINTOSH, '52, former dean of students and professor at Cedarville College, died April 7, at Kettering Medical Center after several years of failing health. He was married in 1951 to BARBARA BECKER, '53, and after graduation at Bryan, served as pastor of the Grace Brethren Church in his home town of Norwalk, Ohio. He continued to work for Th.M and Th.D. degrees at Grace Theological Seminary. He had served as president of the Bryan College Alumni Association. In addition to his wife, he is survived by three sons and daughters-in-law, nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

J. DONALD ROBERTS, '54, passed away Feb. 25. He was a retired pastor in Weatherford, Ok.

JOE KANNON, '55, died April 18, 1998, after retiring from BellSouth Telephone. He had worked in public relations at Rock City Garden in Tennessee, and in security at Kennedy Space Center. He also spent a year in study and ministry in Israel. Joe had struggled all his life with dyslexia and stuttering but with tutoring he had finished college, earned a master's degree and worked on his doctorate. In his continued frustration while relaxing in his swimming pool on a hot summer day, he called out to the Lord, "Open my heart and mind to accept Your will." Seconds later, a rumble of thunder and a bolt of lightning slashed the sky and shot down. He crawled out of the pool to be taken to the hospital to recover from the shock. Later, when reading his Bible, he realized he was reading and comprehending with no stumbling, and his stuttering was healed. His story, "Struck by a Mighty Flash," was printed by Guideposts. Joe is survived by his wife, Gay, Lookout Mountain, Ga., and two sons, Steven, Marietta, Ga., and Timothy, Sanford, Fla.

STAN MICHALSKI, '58, went home to be with the Lord April 27. He was a retired production coordinator of Tyndale House Publishers. He is survived by his wife, Beverly, Warrenville, Ill.
